

A Career Opportunity

At UNICEF, we work tirelessly to ensure children survive, wherever children's lives are at risk. As part of the UN, we are active in more countries and have saved more children's lives than any other humanitarian organization.

By embarking on an ambitious campaign, we will reach every child, even those in the most remote and hard-to-reach places with the essentials that every child and every family needs to survive. Because no child is too far.

Consider joining us as our:

Policy Specialist, Canada One Youth

(Permanent; Full-time; based in Toronto)

The Policy Specialist, Canada One Youth has an exciting role in UNICEF Canada – influencing public policy and stakeholder practice to advance the rights and well-being of Canada's children and youth. Reporting to the Director, Policy and Advocacy, you will identify, design and deliver opportunities to influence legislation, policies, investments, practices and knowledge in all levels of government and across the child and youth serving sector. You will collaborate with colleagues in UNICEF Canada's innovation lab to mobilize data and policy analysis for and with kids, and convene stakeholders to participate in designing solutions.

You're agile enough to take our strategic plan and figure out where we can make the greatest impact; you want to solve problems in novel ways and you are very comfortable engaging influential government decision-makers and child-serving organizational leaders. You will not have staff that report to you but you'll draw on your experience in advocacy and your knowledge of the policymaking process to mentor and support those around you. The work will be challenging and deeply meaningful. Like your team-mates, you will embrace a fast-pace and are comfortable trying out new ways to inspire and engage Canadians. This includes building robots (seriously).

The responsibilities of the position will include:

Policy analysis and influence (45%)

- Identify and respond to opportunities to influence public policy affecting children's rights and well-being, drawing on your knowledge of the policy environment and your stakeholder network.
- Use your experience designing advocacy initiatives to determine and deliver effective advocacy strategies.
- Develop legislative briefs, policy analysis, presentations and appropriate communications for/with governments and stakeholders, drawing on your knowledge of Canadian child and youth policy, UNICEF's data and Canada's children's rights obligations.

- Hone your policy influence and advocacy tactics: Use and experiment with new ways to grow a network of influence, mobilize knowledge, design campaigns and identify the right tactics for your objectives.
- Design youth participation opportunities in collaboration with UNICEF Canada's Youth Participation Lead.
- Monitor current developments in government, research and public discourse on children's rights issues in Canada and internationally.
- Develop a strong knowledge of UNICEF's overall policies and programs.
- Decide and manage the work of occasional interns, student placements and volunteers.

Stakeholder engagement and advocacy (45%)

- Develop and sustain positive, strategic relationships and effectively communicate with stakeholders in government, civil society organizations and networks, and academic/research institutions, to inform, influence and facilitate collaboration in various initiatives.
- Maintain relationships, coordinate meetings and represent UNICEF Canada at meetings with key policy staff at departmental and parliamentary levels.
- Participate in / or present at forums and in coalitions, as required.
- Plan and manage events and initiatives, commission and manage research, and design and deliver training related to child and youth policy.
- Contribute to diverse stakeholder communications (including Web, e-news, social media).
- Develop key relationships with UNICEF globally related to domestic policy work.
- Manage a stakeholder database.

Organizational development (10%)

- Contribute to internal monitoring and evaluation.
- Play an expert role on project teams to identify policy influence opportunities, participating in Agile planning, team meetings, events and other initiatives.
- Collaborate with and coach the people around you to develop knowledge of the state of children and youth and a children's rights approach to UNICEF Canada's work.
- Support a youth-centric perspective and produce results/deliver value every day.
- Ensure integrity with the organizational mission and values in all activities.
- Maintain an effective system to organize information and documentation.
- Maintain accurate financial and activity records to ensure project/program accountability.
- Develop and manage materials including translation and production services.

The ideal candidate will have:

- A post-secondary degree in Public Policy, Political Science, or a related field.
- A minimum of five (5) years relevant work experience.
- A strong knowledge of Canadian governance, parliamentary, policy-making and law-making processes.

- Great policy analysis, research and advocacy skills and experience.
- A good understanding of issues affecting children and youth in Canada.
- Knowledge of the UN Convention on the Rights of the Child and the international human rights system (an asset).
- Great organizational skills, with superb attention to detail and quality while meeting deadlines and multitasking in a fast-paced, dynamic environment.
- Great communications skills for diverse media and relationship management abilities.
- Experience with standard office software and with social media platforms.
- English language proficiency.
- French language or Indigenous cultural competency (an asset).
